Customer Reviews

Well-written, easy reads - engaging and informative. Once again, Zoe Kardia shares her knowledge through well-written, easy reads that are engaging and informative. These are helpful references for both the beginner as well as practitioners who wish to review the basics. While communicating with the Goddess with a clear and focused mind is helpful, I myself, converse with the Goddess throughout each day whenever the need arises, whether for help in finding lost objects, or seeking clarity, guidance and protection in personal situations. Daily, I respectfully invoke the Elements, especially Air energy when a gentle wind is needed to cool or clear cigarette smoke from posted non-smoking areas. Various crystals from around the world share my home and workplace, providing balance, courage, clearer communication, harmony, healing energy, and protection. Easily understood, and a comfort to read, this two-book set should be an important part of any beginner or practitioner's reference library. Well done!

This book goes into a lot of depth and is very informative and descriptive for new Wiccans. I found it from the wicca.com site and it was everything I could have asked for. I feel eager and excited to start practicing my craft that this book showed is the right religion for me.

These books are great for beginning practitioners of Wicca. Written in a friendly, very readable style - the author makes it enjoyable to digest a lot of information (new, for many). The first book helps me feel more confident about spell work, which I have been nervous about doing wrong. And the second book reminds me to, and how to, stay in touch with and open to the influence of the divine (and that even for a born Catholic, this doesn't have to take place in church!). These two books are a natural pair, discussing energy both from the source and channeled for a purpose. Will revisit often.

These books made a great pair. Great for beginners and also some wonderful nuggets of wisdom for non-beginners. The Universal Laws discussed in Casting Spells poses as a wonderful reminder for all of us practicing the Craft that we must remain positive and send out the right kind of energy in order to see any positive results. I appreciated the tips in Talking to the Goddess that provide simple yet effective ways to strengthen our relationship with the Divine. Especially for the beginner, it makes creating and nurturing a relationship with the Divine seem more attainable and not as complicated as it can be made out to be.

This book outlines some of the basics of Wiccan beliefs: staying connected and being respectful of nature and our Earth, maintaining positive thoughts toward yourself and others, as well as keeping a sharp mind and a joyful heart. The Wiccan Rede (most important code) is to do no harm to others. Ms. Zoe clearly explains what Wicca is and dispels misconceptions with a thoughtful and kind voice. She also explains the Threefold Law, which is basically you sow what you reap. This is a book about how to live your life in a joyful, appreciative and thoughtful manner; regardless of your religion.

This was a great two-book set! Casting spells isn't so much a book of recipe spells, but explains the the Universal Laws of spell work, guidance on how to use magical tools, herbs, crystals, & candles. There's also a great reference guide for the magical energies & properties of plants and herbs used in spellwork. Talking with the Goddess is great guide for learning to control your thoughts, and state of mind by training in meditation. She gives some wonderful grounding techniques, instructions on how to find a mantra to fits you, and lessons for pranayama.

I liked this book a lot. As a fairly new witch I usually read such books and take in the info/opinions. I use what works for me and leave what doesn't. Part 1 of this book, Casting Spells had me pulling out my BOS and taking notes as I went along. That was a lot of fun for me. I really gleaned some fantastic info about spell work, using the elements and various tools. Part 2 Talking to the Goddess was beautiful. Body, health, energy & emotions all connected to everything seen and unseen is what I walked away with. Very empowering to me as a witch and as a woman.
