Award-winning writer RICHARD J. LENZ is president of Lenz Design & Communications, Inc., a print and Web design communications firm in Decatur, Georgia that specializes in the areas of nature, medicine, and law. Lenz has also won awards for design and photography.

After residing in the Georgia Lowcountry for the past 19 of my 67 years, I found Richard Lenz' book to be among the very best regional guides I have ever read on the area, despite the fact that it has not been revised or updated in the 16 years since 1999. For a comprehensive introduction to this most remarkable coastal ecosystem and its demographics, as well as a thorough baptism in the teeming black water of its living history, this 336-page collection of facts, cautions, useful guidance and even remarkable cultural trivia cannot be surpassed. My own personal regret is that I did not discover it until I moved to Metro Atlanta! For the newcomer (and, alas, there are too many of you), this should be among your primary references to the absolutely magnificent area in which you find yourself.
