Grade 3-6 -- These entries in the popular series continue to bring history alive. Each title focuses on one event or period told from the point of view of an individual participant. In Tea Party, readers assume the role of a poor young man living in Boston who is too short to join the British Army; in China, readers learn what it was like to be imprisoned and then forced to work on the Great Wall for five years; and in Roman Soldier, readers role is that of a young man who wants to escape his dull life and see the world. The books are filled to the page edges with facts and gory details about the harshness of conditions and severity of life in these times. The illustrations are light and comical, and deftly balance the blood-and-guts focus of the texts. Purchase where other titles in the series are in demand, or where books for reluctant readers are needed. -- Wendy Woodfill, Hennepin County Library, Minnetonka, MN Copyright © Reed Business Information, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc. I purchased this for my 6 year old grandson as he is currently studying the beginnings of the Revolutionary War in 1st grade. Both he and the teacher, who shared it with the class, absolutely loved this book.

Fun & interesting facts that I can't find in a textbook my, my students love to read these & laugh at the pictures!

The entire series of these books are great.

Excellent

Bought with several others of this series for an electronic entry class. We're well received. Seemed colorful and fun to me and a good way to pick up interesting facts

This series of books is fantastic. A fun, yet realistic, view of a historical time period.

This is a wonderful add-on to any elementary course on the buildup to the Revolutionary War. My kids love having this book read to them, and they love learning about how things actually were back in the 1700s.

A fun read for the students to learn about the "fun" facts of this point in history.
